The trouble with one-size-fits-all is that it doesn't. It's tempting to think that somewhere out there is a platform or tool that will magically meet all your organisational learning needs. When the world was simpler maybe that was the case - but not now. The solutions of yesterday don't solve the problems of today because the challenges and opportunities we face are tougher and more complex. The good news is that there are many forms of digital solution available (34 that we've mapped so far) – but the trouble is knowing when to use them. It's easy to get seduced by shiny tech and marketing hyperbole but when, and how much, of your budget should you spend on what?

In this interactive session, you'll learn how to identify the appropriate budget and approach for a project, following a robust, repeatable rationale for doing so. You'll also get access to a free tool to help identify the right combination of digital learning approaches to meet your strategic aims, achieving the maximum impact for your investment.

Digital Transformation in Organisations

September 4 @ 3:00 pm - 3:45 pm

Presented by Steve Wheeler

Enterprise 1

In an age of rapid change and disruption, organisations must either keep pace or die. The transformation of practices, changing markets, emerging technologies and new trends can be overwhelming, but with a digitally ready workforce, which benefits from authentic, situated learning and development (L&D), the task can be made easier. Digital transformation in organisations is not easy, but can be successfully achieved, especially where key personnel – a critical mass of individuals – know how to leverage the power and potential of digital technology to manage change. In this interactive session we will explore the following ideas:

1. Change and digital transformation
2. New models of L&D
3. Digital readiness
4. L&D as change agency
5. Barriers and enablers for innovation
6. New technologies and the future of learning and development

Digital Learning Transformation (hint – it's not just about technology)

September 4 @ 4:15 pm - 5:00 pm

Presented by Lori Niles-Hofmann

Interact

Most companies begin their digital learning transformation with the purchase of a new platform. And whilst the technology is important, if you do not change the way your team functions, it can be like buying a race car and never driving on it a racetrack. This session will give practical tips on how to achieve a return on your investment via key levers. These include: a new target operating model for L&D, moving beyond annual planning to leveraging business analytics, how to migrate from courses to resources, and methods to become a true business partner delivering value.

Where Virtual Reality Training Has Proven To Be Profitable And How Scientific Research Is Backing That Up

September 4 @ 4:15 pm - 5:00 pm

Presented by Peter Manniche Riber

Enterprise 1

Peter is very passionate about proving business value with digital learning initiatives including new technology like Virtual Reality, Augmented Reality and Machine Learning.

He has experience with introducing VR in a large corporate learning environment and navigating through a complex corporate structure to make it a success.

With this talk Peter will takes us through cases of applying virtual reality learning environments to specific contexts, with the objective to create improved retention, muscle memory, emotional impact and business value through reduced costs. Beyond that, he will show examples of applied research specifically proving the effect of VR.

If Training Works, Prove It!

September 5 @ 11:30 am - 12:15 pm

Presented by Kevin M. Yates

Interact

Each year, we spend thousands of dollars and hundreds of hours invested in training. But the question, is, “Did anything at all change as a result of the time and money invested in training and employee development?” or simply put, “Did training work?”. Join Kevin M. Yates, the Sherlock Holmes of L&D, as he shares how to collect facts, evidence and data that shows the impact of training and learning on organization goals and employee performance.

What will we do?

- Discuss techniques for conducting an L&D investigation.
- Examine the facts, evidence and data that tells the impact story for Learning & Development.
- Build the case that solves the mystery for results and answers the question, “Did training work?”

Kevin will immerse you in exercises, activities and discussion that builds your capability for being an L&D detective. You’ll discover how to answer the question, “Did training work?”, with fact-based evidence.

Leadership 4.0: How To Lead Organisations For High Performance In The Fourth Industrial Revolution

September 5 @ 1:30 pm - 2:15 pm

Presented by Professor Vlatka Hlupic

Enterprise 2

The Fourth Industrial Revolution requires new model of leadership based on people, purpose and collaboration. While people are often stated as a company's greatest asset, few businesses have a clear model of leadership that improves performance, engagement, removes barriers to innovation, and uncovers hidden strengths in people and the organization.

In this interactive session, Professor Vlatka Hlupic will demonstrate how organisations can make The Big Shift to a new way of thinking and working, leading to improved business performance in the Fourth Industrial Revolution. The talk will be based on Vlatka's award winning research published in her books "The Management Shift" and "Humane Capital".
